François and Rosaria Guilbeau had five children, including Adèle, who married her cousin Rosaria Ramón. Guilbeau died young and was buried in France at an unknown site, probably Montpellier, where they owned a vineyard and chateau, and where the children were reared in a convent after their mother's death.

Texas History Captured by Artists Enamored with the Land and Its People

The idea for a swimming pool came from children in 1913 who expanded on Mayor Clinton Brown's suggestion that some swimming holes could be created in the San Antonio River using artesian well flow.

In the final event, the contestants broke in several wild horses, and then the judges awarded first prize to a Ranger and second prize to a Comanche warrior. Officials had the boundaries marked off as remembered by older residents, and then the city initiated legal proceedings against those it considered trespassers.
