Managerial Decision

The United States and too many other countries require that citizens opt in to organ donation through a proactive effort; as a consequence, consent rates range between 4. In contrast, changing the decision architecture to an opt-out policy improves consent rates to 85. This quality was widely praised after the International Monetary Fund chose Christine Lagarde as its director following the dramatic exit in 2011 of her predecessor, Dominique Strauss-Kahn, in the wake of a lurid scandal.
