The return of Cosimo de' Medici to Florence in 1434 enabled the Dominicans, of whom he had long been a patron, to secure for themselves the ruined convent of San Marco. Fra Angelico, The Mocking of Christ detail , with the Virgin and Saint Dominic, 1439-1443, fresco, Cell 7, Convent of San Marco, Florence 1439-43 The The Mocking of Christ is the fresco on the wall of Cell 7 of the Convento di San Marco in Florence. He financed the rebuilding of the convent and occasionally used these rooms as a retreat.

The Nativity, Fra Angelico

Sts Cosmas and Damian are regarded as the patrons of physicians and surgeons and are sometimes represented with medical emblems. This company is committed to the security of its users' data.

Additionally, his precise construction of space, following Alberti's theories, ensure the centrality of the Virgin and Child amidst the numerous figures. Together they all work to frame Gabriel and Mary and highlight the focal point of the piece. Further portraits include St Thomas Aquinas and John the Baptist.

Adoration of the Magi (Fra Angelico and Filippo Lippi)

Angelico's use of space is exceptional as he creates a sense of balance on both sides of the Virgin and Child, but also leaves available space on the carpet approaching the Virgin and Child so the viewer does not feel blocked or overwhelmed. Saint Cosmas's representation pays homage to Cosimo de' Medici since it has been identified as a portrait of Cosimo himself. Hood's discussion of San Marco follows an itinerary through the church and adjoining convent buildings, beginning with the high altarpiece and ending with the corridor paintings—especially the exquisite Annunciation in the dormitory corridor.

Convent of San Marco

The saints surrounding the Virgin and Child seem representative of the Dominican Congregation at large. This partly explains their discrepancy in scale with the two shepherds below them, though perhaps not entirely. Marco, mostly by Niccolò Orsi Battaglini, are stupendous in quality and number.
