It was also shown at the prestigious Whitney Biennial in New York in 1978. Keep destroying any attempt to paint pictures, or think about art.

Philip Guston Retrospective

This description could also be applied to Hat, in which the absence of scale and the indistinct setting of the image creates a disorientating sense of space. Sometimes they looked menacing, other times tender, provoking one to wonder whether such words anthropomorphize what is essentially inscrutable.

'Hat', Philip Guston, 1976

The creation of the website and catalogue raisonné has been a seven-year project of The Guston Foundation, founded in 2013 by Musa Mayer.

Untitled

Outside, fans and the press were anticipating a new selection of abstract canvases in line with the celebrated colour-field works he had been making over the previous two decades.

Putting It All Together

Installation view of The Long Run. His smaller paintings of Roman ruins and gardens from 1971, and the larger Relic 1974, are steeped in nostalgia and a longing for continuity. That exhibition, which included his symbolic, hooded figures, had a powerful impact on at least three generations of artists who have re-engaged figuration after decades in which abstraction dominated American painting.
