EU Adaptation Strategy

Some scholars have claimed that Hinduism borrowed its concept of monotheism and trinity from Christianity. We find that transformative approaches have been mainly supported by local initiatives instigated by local governments, residents, or NGOs with the aim of complementing conventional hazard management policies.

Global hunger and climate change adaptation through international trade

This country case study on Thailand is part of a series that describes the steps taken to formulate and implement National Adaptation Plans NAPs , with a particular emphasis on adaptation in agriculture including forestry, livestock and fisheries.
