The Baltic states are also the location of the Western Dvina and Neman Rivers. While the population of the Baltic states is quite small, each country has a major city as its capital: Tallinn in Estonia; Rīga in Latvia; and Vilnius in Lithuania.

THE BALTIC STATES: AN OVERVIEW

It is also the most homogenous Baltic state, as ethnic Lithuanians make up 84% of the population. Most Latvians are Christian, mainly belonging to the Lutheran, Roman Catholic, and East Orthodox churches.

News from Latvia, Estonia & Lithuania

One of the most significant cultural traditions in the Baltic states is the singing of folk songs, of which there are thousands. The negative attitude towards Russian tends to persist more strongly in Estonia and Latvia, with Lithuania having less anti-Russian language sentiment. It is bordered to the south by Latvia, to the north by the Gulf of Finland, to the east by Russia, and to the west by the Baltic Sea.
