Topic: Social Change and Education

Introduction

"Once social change begins, it cannot be reversed. You cannot un-educate the person who has learned to read. You cannot humiliate the person who feels pride. You cannot oppress the people who are not afraid anymore. We have seen the future, and the future is ours". Cesar Chavez

This study will be taking a look at the relationship and interaction between Social Change and Education and how one influences the other and vice versa. An attempt will be made to understand and explain the concept(s) driving both factors, and their relationship with one another.

Definition of Terms

Social Change

Social change refers to an alteration in the social order of a society. It may refer to the notion of social progress or socio-cultural evolution, the philosophical idea that society moves forward by dialectical or evolutionary means. It may refer to a paradigmatic change in the socio-economic structure, for instance a shift away from feudalism and towards capitalism. Accordingly, it may also refer to social revolution, such as the Socialist revolution presented in Marxism, or to other social movements, such as Women's suffrage or the Civil rights movement. Social change may be driven by cultural, religious, economic, scientific or technological forces.

More generally, social change may include changes in nature, social institutions, social behaviours, or social relations and in this case, Education.

Brief History of Social Change

Social change can be described to have been a constant phenomenon that started from the very first man. Evolution and the Religious concept of Creation both support's the theory that since the very beginning of the existence of man, social change has been inevitable, and in fact, a constant action that has driven growth, civilization and brought about novel ideas and social institutions relevant till date.
