Learning difficulties in primary classrooms : delivering the whole curriculum (eBook, 2019) [mikhmon.us.to]

Those who learned from and interacted with multiple texts learned more content, had higher reading-comprehension scores, and sourced and corroborated more often that the other two treatment groups in the study. Rather, learning in a content area involves a process of engaging in disciplinary practices that require learners to use knowledge in the context of discipline-specific activities and tasks. Working in an open, multigrade school requires serious, ongoing teacher training and a commitment to hard work.
