In a daguerreotype, the image is formed directly on a silver-coated copper plate made light sensitive with a coating of iodine vapors. Fascinated, Schulze cut the letters out of a piece of paper and placed it on top of a silver mixture. The later addition of the halftone method greatly added to the possibilities of photoengraving, but for our purposes it is worth keeping line work and halftone work distinct.

3 Ways to Restore Old Photographs

This proved to be the major factor in its demise, compared to the negative-positive processes, from which unlimited copies could be made. For gods sake, Google offers a scan app that does the same thing for free.
